Exercise for Arthritis affected Knee joint

5:56 pm in Exercises, Osteoarthritis by admin

Regular exercises are very important to keep muscles stronger, stronger muscles support and load the knee in a better way and prevent injuries. A patient suffering from arthritis usually feels stiffness in joints, muscles and ligaments for which stretching is a right solution to relax, cool down inflaming pain and prevent further damage. In brief we can say that the following points are important in delaying the effects of the arthritis

- 1.Regular Exercise
- 2.Maintaining weight at the ideal level
- 3.Once symptoms are noted avoid excessive loading viz. stairs and sitting on the floor.
- 4.Always have a balanced diet
- 5.Specially take care of your drinking water

Few examples of stretching suggested for arthritis patients are

1. To n fro movement of leg as shown in picture below for 2 min in every 3 hour to avoid obesity, it exactly results as walking or jogging and a very good example of stretching for arthritis patients.

2. Pull back thigh with towel or cloth 10 times, once in a day.

3. Press your knees in same way 3 to 5 times once a day as shown in picture, you can do same on your bed when you awake in morning.

4. Pull your ankle back as shown in picture 5 times each leg on bed when you wake up in morning.
